Property Description

Nestled in the lush hills of Piedras Negras de Mora, less than an hour from San José and near El Rodeo, this 12-hectare estate (approximately 29.65 acres) is a true natural sanctuary. The property features a 550 m² building (about 5,920 square feet), surrounded by pure biodiversity—perfect for nature lovers, eco-tourism investors, or those seeking a private mountain retreat. During high season, the property generates approximately 700,000 colones in a single weekend, operating only on Saturdays and Sundays. The main building includes two full bathrooms. In the outdoor areas, there are 4 restrooms, 3 showers, one additional outdoor shower, and an extra full bathroom. The camping area offers 2 additional restrooms and 6 more showers, ensuring comfort and functionality for a high volume of visitors across different parts of the property. Enjoy two streams, a large river, and five breathtaking waterfalls—all within your own land.
