Property Description

The owners were looking for the perfect property, so they searched endlessly. It had to be at least 10 acres. It had to have a lot of jungle, but some open spaces where they could build at least two houses and maybe some cabins. It had to have a beautiful view of the ocean. It had to be sloped gently enough that they could create a network of private pathways. It had to be within a spread-out community of friends, but with complete privacy. The access had to be easy and well maintained. The afternoon they first walked onto this property as the sun was setting into the Pacific Ocean and the toucans were loudly calling, they knew they were home. That was several years ago, and this 12-acre property is now for sale in the community of Lagunas just 15 minutes from Dominical and its famous beaches. It is still one of the most beautiful private pieces of land you will see here. From the undeveloped building site, you can watch ocean sunsets almost all year.
