Property Description

In the heart of Barrantes, San Joaquín de Flores, there is a 17,567 m² land that combines strategic location, a consolidated residential environment, and a development potential difficult to match in Heredia. Its immediate access to services, shops, educational centers, and main roads makes it an ideal opportunity for housing projects, mixed-use, or low-density developments with high added value. The property offers usable topography and an environment that already demands new modern, sustainable, and well-connected housing solutions. It is a point where tranquility, urban growth, and a growing community converge, which allows for the visualization of projects with high market acceptance. For developers looking for a plot with feasibility, potential, and a prime location, this property represents a solid foundation for building innovative and profitable proposals in one of the most attractive areas of the Greater Metropolitan Area
